

Representation Learning

• Deep learning is fundamentally about representing learning

- A representation is a symbol that approximates the entities and/or relations in the real world

- Your brain has representations of the real world because it cannot actually contain the real world

Representation Learning

- Deep learning is fundamentally about representation learning
- A representation is a symbol that approximates the entities and/or relations in the real world
- Your brain has representations of the real world because it cannot actually contain the real world

How do CNNs work?